FROM THE RABBI
RABBI ELLIOT J. COSGROVE

Mah Hadash? What's New?

Shanah Tovah! With the arrival of a new year and the beginning of the fall, a lot is new at Park Avenue Synagogue. As individuals, we ask ourselves how this coming year will be different from the past one. What resolutions shall we make in order to edge closer to becoming the people we aspire to be? Are there steps we must take with our friends and family toward healing, building and deepening the connections that shape our lives? Each of us is the author of our own narrative; the decisions we make will determine how the year ahead will differ from the one now ending.

And so too in our synagogue. This fall we will dedicate our Eli M. Black Lifelong Learning Center on 89th Street. Reflecting years of vision, hard work, and communal support, this building is an extraordinary statement of the past efforts, present vibrancy, and future hopes and dreams of Park Avenue Synagogue. The new building and the anticipated renewal of our present building together reflect that we truly are a “synagogue in action.” No different than the arrival of a new year, the opening of a new building will make a difference only to the extent that we step up to the promise it offers. We ourselves must be dedicated to being lifelong learners. The education departments of our synagogue under Rabbi Savenor’s leadership offer abundant opportunities to deepen our connections with our tradition and each other. The program catalog enclosed with this Bulletin is titled Mah Hadash, What’s New. In addition to listing all our continuing programs and classes, it highlights new initiatives that will accompany the opening of the new building. Look for innovation in our Congregational School, small-group learning spearheaded by Rabbi Witkovsky, outreach education led by Rabbi Zuckerman, music salons led by our cantors, book discussions in partnership with the Jewish Lives biography series from Yale, community conversations to explore issues of Jewish identity, and more! Together our educators and clergy are providing a renewed and grand vision for the year ahead. It is a vision that reflects our desire to provide compelling portals for our members to enter the riches of our tradition.

It is now up to you to decide if you will step up to participate in our renewed commitment to community and learning. Will this be the year that you endeavor to fill gaps in your Jewish literacy, whatever they may be? After you flip through the Mah Hadash catalog and browse our website, will this be the year that you sign up for a class or lecture? Will this be the year that you join a synagogue committee and share your wisdom toward shaping our congregational vision? Will you come on our PAS trip celebrating Israel’s 70th? The answers to these questions are not in any brochure or webpage, but within each of us.

May this year ahead be filled with health and happiness. May we begin this new year and enter this new building ready to reflect on the kind of people, the kind of Jews and the kind of community that we aspire to be. Most of all, may we have the resolve to dedicate ourselves towards fulfilling our aspirations, to become authors of our narratives, and be written for good into the book of life.

Mahzor for Young Families for Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur

The PAS Music Center proudly announces the next volume in the Family Siddur Project. Generously sponsored by Patricia Braun Silvers and David Silvers, this prayer book is designed especially for young children and their grownups to use at services, at the family table, and in prayerful moments at home, as well as to visit the sounds of the synagogue any day of the year. The new mahzor will be used in YFE services and will be available for members to pick up over the holidays.

The colorful and playful pages of this book not only show the words of the prayers and what they mean, but also the structure of the service and its choreography. In addition, all the music is available for download at pasyn.org/familysiddur2. The musical selections include contemporary compositions commissioned recently by the PAS Music Center, as well as familiar melodies closely identified with the High Holidays. Singing will help children learn the prayers, find meaning in the text, and become comfortable with the full range of Jewish music.

To obtain a copy of the mahzor after the holidays, contact the Music Center at pspiro@pasyn.org or x115.

—Va-yikra (Leviticus) 23:40

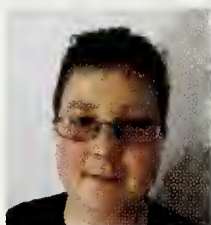

Sukkot begins on Wednesday evening, October 4.

We wave the lulav every day during the week of Sukkot, except on Shabbat. Enhance your celebration of the holiday with a lulav and etrog set from Israel. Each set includes an etrog (fruit of the hadar), a lulav (palm), hadassim (myrtle, leafy trees), aravot (willows), as well as a holder and rings woven of palm to hold the branches together.

Cost: $40/set. To order, visit pasyn.org/lulav. Those without internet access may call our ritual director, Cantor Eric Wasser, at x102. Deadline to order: Tuesday, September 26 at 9:00 am.

FROM THE EDUCATION TEAM
RABBI CHARLIE SAVENOR

“Didn't We Learn This Before?”

When I talk to children in our congregation, it is not uncommon for them to ask me: “Didn’t we learn this before?” This forthright question has been applied to everything from bible stories to Yom HaAtzma’ut. The simple answer, frankly, is “yes.” But the full answer is that everything we learn, at any age, is meant to be revisited and reexamined at a later time. Such is the nature of lifelong learning.

The opening of our Eli M. Black Lifelong Learning Center this month is an invitation to our community to examine our commitment to Jewish education. By featuring the words “lifelong learning” in the name of this state-of-the-art facility we assert that understanding Torah, wrestling with spiritual questions, and striving to get closer to God through study is a process that begins when we are small children and continues for the rest of our lives.

Our vision is that at every stage of their educational journey members of our community will see the issues of our day through a Jewish lens and participate in what is technically called a “spiral curriculum.” Just as learners return again and again to mathematical concepts, scientific principles, and literary analysis, understanding them in a more sophisticated way at every developmental stage, so a Jewish spiral curriculum revisits topics throughout our lives with the expectation that each encounter will reinforce what we have learned before so that we can build on that foundation.

This educational approach is part and parcel of Judaism. In essence, kri-at ha-torah, the weekly Torah reading, makes us all members of a book discussion group that reads the same book every year. We could well ask every week: “Didn’t we read this before?” Of course we did, but each year, while the text is the same, we are not. Every time we open our sacred scroll is an opportunity to see it anew.

Another aspect of Jewish lifelong learning is dialogue. From the earliest commentaries on the Torah, Jewish learning has been a centuries-long conversation. Our education departments are working together to bring learners into this conversation not only in discussions among peers but in multi-generational exchanges.

In order to generate such a conversation, this December we are launching a weeklong scholar-in-residence program. We are honored that Clive Lawton, a visionary educator who has transformed Jewish learning around the globe through the organization Limmud, will meet and teach learners in every PAS education department. In our eyes, lifelong learning is not a product, but rather an ongoing process. As we look to 5778, our educators are continually identifying ways of working collaboratively to define goals, map our spiral curriculum, and ensure smooth transitions, so that learning at PAS is not only a progression from one age level to the next, but a lifelong immersion in Jewish texts and Jewish questions.

In the years to come, rather than a learner who asks, “Didn’t we learn this before?” I imagine a learner who says, “I studied this before, but I will never look it at the same way again.” I am confident that our talented PAS educators can make this dream a reality, and the Jewish future will be stronger because of it.

This Month at PAS

The majority of our weekly classes will begin meeting in October after Simhat Torah. Visit pasyn.org, and sign up now to study later. Those without internet access may call 212-369-4900, x143. RSVP = Advance registration required. $ = There is a cost for the event.

Transforming the Word: Continuing the Tradition of Hebrew Manuscript Illumination The Art of Barbara Wolff

Sep–Jan

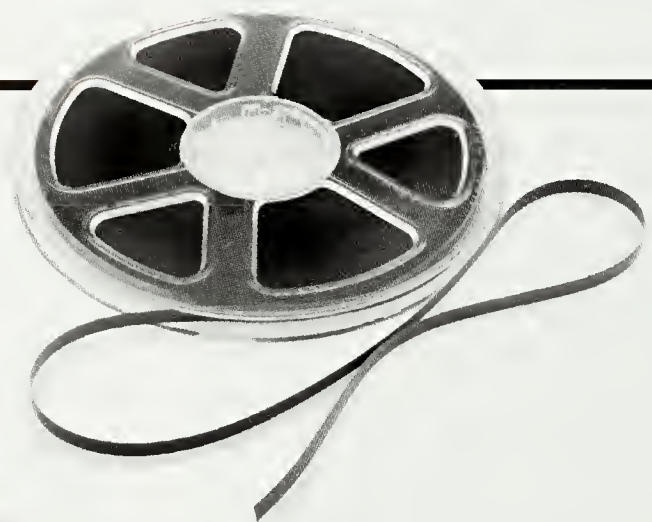

Barbara Wolff's illuminated texts are created in the tradition of the great medieval Hebrew manuscripts. Made with materials and techniques of the 14th century, and with an awareness of the history, archeology, geography, and customs of the region in which these ancient words were set, her illuminations yet reflect a 21st-century sensibility.

POSTCARD FROM CAMP

Shabbat-o-grams 2017

According to a Jewish proverb, travel gives you a story to tell. This past summer, PAS kids traveled to Jewish camps throughout the country and returned with abundant stories to tell about friends, adventures, and experiences suffused with Jewish values. While away, they were also warmly reminded of their connections to PAS when the camping and youth committees, educators, and clergy sent campers “Shabbat-o-grams.” These Shabbat messages helped campers celebrate their Jewish camp experience: an incredibly fun chapter in the story of a deepening Jewish identity.

If you are planning for your child to embark on a summer of fun at a Jewish camp and you have any questions, contact Jewish Camping Committee chair Lynne Bermont at lynnebermont@yahoo.com or Hallie Chandler, Director of Youth Programming and Engagement, at hchandler@pasyn.org or x147.
